Awards Committee

Someone is Always Watching

Throughout my life, I've always heard the phrase, "someone is always watching." It's true, especially within the communications center. Someone is always listening too. We know of the great things that are happening in the centers, so why aren't we making nominations?

The APCO International Public Safety Communications Awards Program presents us with an opportunity to praise and celebrate the great work completed and lives saved by our colleagues, co-workers and other peers. We have this opportunity to showcase the impact each role in 9-1-1 may have on a life. As a communications center manager, I have had the opportunity to see how this career field can transform a person into a hero on the phone, radio or within the center.

Awards Committee (continued)

Award categories include:

- Telecommunicator of the Year
- Line Supervisor of the Year
- Radio Frequency Technologist of the Year
- Communications Center Director of the Year
- Information Technologist of the Year
- Trainer of the Year
- Team of the Year

I joined the APCO Awards Committee a few years ago because I love to see other people recognized because they made an impact on someone else's life and/or they help showcase how important the 9-1-1 and public safety industry is for everyone. I saw the power a single nomination could have on a center, state and the nation. These nominations help show why we are life savers, how we trained someone to save a life, supervised a center and maintained safety for responders during a devastating event, smoothly implemented a phone, radio or computer system without interruption to make sure no call for help was missed. These are big accomplishments that deserve recognition, and we may not realize it, but we have so much power in this profession when we complete these nominations.

Over the last several years, telecommunicators and other 9-1-1 professionals have worked hard to become better recognized as first responders, including the push for reclassification as a protective service occupation. We are still pushing and working to show how important telecommunicators have become in maintaining property and lives, but one of the best ways to show this is to complete a nomination for something outstanding you have seen or heard within a center. We want to be recognized as professionals, so let's start by recognizing ourselves!

Anyone may complete a nomination for any category. It only takes a few minutes and the best advice I can give as a person writing a nomination is to keep the person(s) you are nominating in mind. Think of how proud they would be hearing the nomination read to them if they were to hear it for the first time. Detailed and complete sentences help set the stage for the situation and allow the reader to visualize how the person(s) handled a situation that deserves recognition. It never hurts to have someone read over the information to make sure it flows well and is understood.

Members of the APCO Awards Committee enjoy reading the nominations made and want to see more. The nominations are inspiring and even encourage pride within us as we see the great things completed across the nation. Every year, there are nominations that help propel professionalism within the communications centers. We cannot and should not wait for others to make a move and recognize the professionalism, dedication, lives saved and other accomplishments within the centers. We have this great opportunity to recognize one another, and we should take full advantage of it and show we are proud of who we are and what we do every single day.

Cybersecurity Committee

Our ECCs must all be prepared for the when, not if, a Cybersecurity related incident will have an effect on their organizations. It may be a bit worrisome to think about but depending of course on the size of your agency and the resources available to you there are many ways to prepare for such an eventuality.

This is why our committee has begun the preparation for a webinar on this important topic, scheduled to take place on April 29th, 2025, at 1pm EST. This article's purpose is to highlight and introduce some of the important points to be discussed in more detail on that webinar, and to help prepare your agencies the best way available to respond when a cyber incident occurs.

Every ECC will face some sort of cyber incident with this current landscape, but how will you respond? It could range from anything like unusual behavior or spikes in your network activity all the way up to a major cyber incident requiring full restoration of services which can have major implications for your ability to deliver the critical services you provide.

Consider talking with your local community or regional IT group no matter your agency's size and see what steps they take to prevent cyber incidents in their respective fields. Public Safety systems as everyone reading this article know are critical, involve public and responder safety, and must be restored as soon as humanely possible if an incident occurs.

ECCs can significantly enhance their resilience against cyber incidents, by integrating just a few of the following measures, which will help ensure that the ECC can continue to provide critical services without interruption. As our committee points out frequently, cybersecurity is an ongoing process rather than just a one-time setup or checklist item never to look at again.

ECCs must be vigilant through training on a regular basis on safe internet practices and recognizing phishing attempts via email. Managers can also ensure that by implementing strict access controls, only employees who have the training and privilege to access critical systems do so. ECCs are reminded to evaluate obtaining Security Information and Event Management (SIEM) systems to monitor network activities in real-time, allowing for quick detection of anomalies. Of course, staying informed about the latest cyber threats and adapting accordingly with appropriate security measures will help greatly, that's a no cost thing everyone can do!

To find out more resources on how to respond to a cyber incident, check out the 911 Cybersecurity Resource Hub and Cybersecurity Incident Response by the Cybersecurity & Infrastructure Security Agency.

Please again be reminded that the upcoming webinar on this topic presented by members of the APCO Cybersecurity Committee is scheduled for April 29th, 2025 at 1pm EST. These webinars are run by peers in the industry, who are not vendors or technical experts, but represent a broad field of knowledge of this concept from real life experience in their ECCs and agencies. As always, members are encouraged to check out the APCO webinars for some great education.

Havening: A Simple Technique for Stress Relief

Have you ever noticed yourself rubbing your hands together when you're feeling anxious? Or maybe you've instinctively run your hands up and down your arms, even when you're not cold? If so, you're already practicing a powerful technique called Havening. Havening is designed to help calm the mind and body.

The word Havening comes from haven, meaning a safe, peaceful place. When we feel stressed, anxious, or overwhelmed, we naturally seek ways to self-soothe and regain a sense of security. Havening works by using touch to stimulate the production of serotonin, a neurotransmitter known for its mood-boosting and calming effects. By increasing serotonin levels, Havening can help you relax and detach from distressing thoughts or experiences.

You can work with a trained Havening practitioner or use self-Havening techniques anytime, anywhere—even behind the dispatch console. Try one or more of the following exercises:

Havening Arm Rub

- Cross your arms over your chest as if hugging yourself.
- Gently rub your arms in a downward motion from shoulders to elbows.

Breathing with Havening

- While doing the arm rub, take slow, deep breaths and say aloud, "Calm and relax."
- Alternatively, hum softly for 1–2 minutes as you breathe deeply.

Box Breathing with Havening

- While doing the arm rub use the box breathing technique.
- Inhale deeply for a count of four.
- Hold your breath for four seconds.
- Exhale slowly for four seconds.
- Hold again for four seconds before repeating the cycle three or more times.

Hand Rubbing

- Gently stroke the palm of one hand with the other in a back-and-forth motion, as if warming your hands.

Havening is a simple yet effective tool for reducing stress, promoting relaxation, and improving overall well-being. Since energy cannot be destroyed—only transformed—Havening helps redirect and release tension, allowing the mind to quiet and the body to relax.

Give it a try the next time you need a moment of calm. Your body already knows how to self-soothe—now you just have a name for it!

Recharge and Reset: The Power of Napping for 911 Dispatchers

In honor of National Napping Day, March 10, 2025, APCO's Health and Wellness Committee wants to remind you that a well-timed nap can be a game-changer—especially for 911 dispatchers managing long shifts, stress, and unpredictable schedules. Research shows that short naps improve alertness, cognitive performance, and overall well-being. These are all key benefits for those in high-stakes emergency response roles.

The Science Behind Napping

Studies from the National Sleep Foundation and Harvard Medical School highlight the following:

- Improve memory and learning
- Enhance alertness and reaction time
- Reduce stress and support heart health

Napping Tips for Dispatchers

To make the most of a nap:

- Keep it short – A 10-20 minute nap prevents grogginess while boosting energy.
- Time it right – Early afternoon (or equivalent for your shift) is ideal for a quick recharge.
- Create a restful environment – A dark, quiet space with minimal interruptions is best.
- Use strategic caffeine – A "coffee nap" (drinking coffee before a 20-minute nap) can enhance wakefulness.

If your schedule allows, incorporating naps can help combat fatigue and improve focus on the job. Take a moment to rest this National Napping Day, or any day—your mind and body will thank you!

Historical Committee

Remembering Our Past: Life and Senior Member Weldon Josiah “Joe” Blair Jr.

Life and Senior Member Weldon Joe Blair passed away on January 4, 2025 at the age of 88 years.

Joe was a veteran in the Army. He spent most of his career in public safety communications. First working for Collins Radio where he worked on Classified projects. And then DFW (Dallas Fort Worth) airport until his retirement. He was a lifetime member of APCO International (Association of Public-Safety Communications Officials) and was honored with an award named after him, The Weldon Joe Blair Award of Distinction. He was a member of the Historical Committee for two years (2010-2012) and the Spectrum Management Committee for two years (2010-2012).

A lifetime member of the ARRL, as a Ham Radio operator Joe enjoyed meeting and talking to people worldwide. Joe was a Master Mason. He and Mildred were also involved in Eastern Star and loved serving in various capacities.

Mr. Weldon Josiah Blair Jr.

Commercial Advisory Committee

The Value of Being Part of the CCAM Mentorship Program

The CCAM (Commercial Chapter Advisory Member) Mentorship Program has proven to be an invaluable resource for CCAMs across various chapters of APCO. The mentorship group recognizes the importance of time management, meeting just 3-4 times a year to accommodate everyone's busy schedules. Despite the limited formal meetings, the group's true strength lies in the ongoing support it offers. Even between meetings, members are readily available for guidance and assistance. This program fosters collaboration, support, and the exchange of ideas that enable CCAMs to thrive in their roles while strengthening commercial membership engagement at the chapter level. Each group is composed of both seasoned and new CCAMs, fostering an environment of learning and growth. Serving as a CCAM is a volunteer role, and balancing this responsibility with a full-time job can be challenging.

Why the CCAM Mentorship Program Matters

Elected or nominated CCAMs often face challenges due to the lack of formal training or a handoff process from their predecessors. This uncertainty can create stress and confusion about the position's responsibilities. The mentorship program addresses this gap by offering guidance, resources, and a support network that helps CCAMs succeed and grow their chapters' commercial memberships. Hearing success stories from other chapters inspires new ideas. Equally valuable have been the insights into ideas that didn't work—saving time and effort by avoiding potential pitfalls.

Key Skills Developed Through the Program

The CCAM Mentorship Program emphasizes developing essential skills to enhance a CCAM's effectiveness, including:

- Leadership: Building confidence in leading initiatives and guiding chapter activities.
- Policy and By-laws Changes: Navigating the intricacies of chapter governance.
- Commercial Membership Engagement: Strengthening relationships with commercial members and fostering participation.
- Knowledge Sharing: Exchanging ideas and solutions that benefit all chapters.
- Brainstorming Solutions: Collaborating to address common challenges and develop innovative strategies.

The Role of a CCAM

Being a CCAM means serving as a direct representative to the APCO Chapter for its commercial membership. This role provides commercial members with a voice in chapter business. The connections built in this role extend beyond professional networks, fostering relationships with both commercial businesses and public safety professionals across the chapter and beyond.

One of the unique aspects of the CCAM role is its flexibility—there are no strict guidelines from APCO International dictating how the position should function. This allows chapters the freedom to tailor the role to best serve their needs and create meaningful partnerships.

Conclusion

Participating in the CCAM Mentorship Program will only help you become a better CCAM. It will not only enhance your effectiveness as a CCAM but will also strengthen your chapter through shared knowledge and reduced trial and error. The program exemplifies the power of collaboration and the immense value of having a network of dedicated professionals who share a passion for advancing commercial membership and supporting APCO chapters.

“Having been part of the CCAM Mentorship Group for a year, I can confidently say that its purpose of support and idea-sharing has been immensely beneficial. Knowing that I have a network of experienced professionals to consult with is both reassuring and empowering.” -Jenny Mason

The mentorship program’s support, resources, and connections continue to prove to be invaluable. It empowers CCAMs to lead with confidence, drive growth, and foster meaningful relationships within the public safety community.
